Extrapolation of this regimen to women not in labor may be ineffective.

Author and article information

From the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, University of Oklahoma College of Medicine, Oklahoma City, OK (Drs Pierce, Bisson, Dubois, Grimes, Katz, Weed, Wyatt, and Edwards); and Department of Biostatistics and Epidemiology, University of Oklahoma Health Science Center, Hudson College of Public Health, Oklahoma City, OK (Ms Eckart and Dr Peck).

The authors report no conflict of interest.

Financial support was provided by the National Institute of General Medical Sciences (grant number U54GM104938). The funding source had no role in the study design; collection, analysis, and interpretation of the data; writing of the report; or decision to submit the article for publication.

The findings were presented at the Society for Maternal-Fetal Medicine 41st Annual Meeting, January 23–30, 2021 (virtual conference format).

---

CORRECTION

January 2021 (vol. 224, no. 1, pages 62.e1 and 62.e13)

The third-named coauthor of the original research article cited above was misspelled in the January 2021 issue of the Journal. Her name is Joanna E. Bulkley, PhD, not Bulkey. The error appeared in the byline, in the “Cite this article as” section on the opening page, and in the “Author and article information” section following the text.

These corrections have been made in the online edition of the Journal at ajog.org.